Over the initial years of its formation itself, the University has put in place i) a very progressive HRD scheme for Academic Enrichment that has provided a number of initiatives for the faculty members to improve their knowledge base, acquire proficiency in new areas, interact with peer groups and learn from experts, and ii) a code of Maintenance of Academic Qualifications (MAQ) that attached a high value on scholarly activities and intellectual contributions in basic, applied, and instructional/pedagogical development research. Together, these two approaches have resulted in impressive research productivity at the University.

1.1 Faculty of Doctoral Studies and Research (FDSR)

The Faculty of Doctoral Studies and Research would organise, coordinate, and monitor doctoral studies and research in the University. 2.0 Types of Proposals and Funding Agreements

2.1 Types of Proposals

A proposal constitutes a formal request for financial support to undertake a research or training initiative. It is submitted to a prospective funding agency with the objective of securing sponsorship, which may be extended through a contract, grant, cooperative agreement, or any other form of sponsored research mechanism.

Proposals (funding requests) come in several forms:

- A. Solicited Proposal: A solicited proposal is submitted in response to a request by a funding agency for research or training in a specific subject. The proposal may be in response to a Request for Proposal (RFP) or a Request for Application (RFA). An RFA is a solicitation from a funding agency inviting applications from investigators who are interested in working with the funding agency in designing and carrying out a specific project.
- B. Unsolicited Proposal: An unsolicited proposal is a proposal on a subject of interest to the faculty member / group who makes it, which the targeted funding agency may find of interest as well because it is in an area that the agency is exploring, needs more information on whether it fits with other areas of the agency's interest, or has been suddenly deemed a priority. Many organizations and foundations consider unsolicited proposals, as do some government agencies.

C. Seed Grants:

All regular faculty members of the University are eligible to avail seed funding of up to Rs 3.00 lakhs to support their research projects. These seed grants are intended to initiate high-quality, impactful research with strong potential for securing external funding, preferably aligned with national thrust areas and government priorities.

The purpose of the grant is to:

- Initiate or strengthen the individual research efforts of faculty members.
- Serve as a preparatory phase for securing major external or funded grants.
- Support preliminary research activities, including data collection.

1. Seed Grant up to Rs.3.00 lakhs

All faculty members on regular position at the University, can avail seed money of up to Rs. 3.00 lakhs to carry out their research project. Faculty members will have to submit detailed proposal of their research in the prescribed format to the Director-Research. Faculty members will be asked to make a presentation in front of experts in the Research Committee in an open seminar.

Seed grant funds from the University can be used to pay for salaries of Research Assistants, travel for data collection and interviews, and other miscellaneous expenses such as postal/ telephone.

2. Case Seed Grants

Case Seed Grants are intended to fund case writing. It is expected that the case proposal will result in a publishable case in Harvard Case Publishing/Ivy League Case Publishers/ European Case Clearing House/Emerald. Faculty members have to submit a detailed proposal of their research project to avail themselves of this fund in the prescribed format. The grant in this case will be limited to Rs. 50,000.

- D. Renewal: A confirmed renewal is a request for extension of grant time or seeking additional funding for a project that is currently funded, but the period of performance is ending. Renewals generally include new work based on the results of the existing grant and are subject to peer review.

- E. Resubmission: A resubmission is an effort to secure funding for a proposal which has been revised in response to critical comments from reviewers when it was previously submitted. Unless otherwise stated specifically in the funding opportunity announcement or RFA, just one resubmission is permitted.
- F. Revision: A revision is a request to an agency for additional support for an existing project to expand the project's scope or to meet unforeseen expenses. A revision may be submitted to seek approval for a substantial expansion in the scope or jurisdiction of a research project.
- G. Renewal with Continuation: A continuation is a request for extra time without any additional funding. The application is not subject to peer review.

2.2 Funding Agreements

If a proposal is accepted, funding may be awarded in one of the following forms:

A. Contract:

The research proposal that has been funded by the agencies external to the University is normally bound by a Contract. The funding agency exercises considerable direction and control over the performance and timing of the work. Contractual agreements with other entities, such as corporations and foundations, use terms somewhat different from the funding agencies. As always, researchers should consult the Office of CFR about any proposal for any type of funding with any sponsor.

B. Cooperative Agreements

A cooperative agreement is an undertaking in which the research or training project is jointly administered by the funding agency and the University. The selection of the researchers or trainers is done by the Office of CFR and that will be based on peer review.

C. Sponsored Research Agreements

Industry-sponsored research benefits the University by allowing investigators and their students to collaborate with industry partners to further develop basic research discoveries. The Office of CFR is responsible for negotiating research agreements, which protect the University's interests, particularly rights of publication and intellectual property ownership. These terms are incorporated into a legal contract called a Sponsored Research Agreement (SRA).

3 Policy for the Sponsored Research

A faculty member or a group of faculty members from a school or across schools can approach the Office of CFR for research funding. After identifying research opportunity, the principal researcher will write a proposal – that is, complete a very specific application for funding – and then submit it to the Office of CFR. The award is usually granted for a specific period or a project completion as made in the proposal. The Office of CFR is responsible for the coordination of proposal submission and the acceptance of awards for grants and contracts. All faculty-initiated requests for support, regardless of funding source, must be processed by the Office of CFR. The Director-Research would vet the proposal and forward it to the Office of the Vice-Chancellor. The final decision on approval for the faculty / group of faculties to undertake the sponsored research would rest with the Vice-Chancellor / Pro Chancellor. This is to ensure that if the grant is awarded, the University is prepared for award and administer of the funds. The faculty or the research group is expected to make reports on ongoing and pending grants and contracts, and complete data is necessary on completion of three months of each project.

1. The Office of CFR will provide faculty members with information on available research funding opportunities. The Research Grant Tracker is prepared and circulated to help faculty explore funding options aligned with their research interests. Additionally, faculty members may independently explore potential funding opportunities through the Funding Institutional database.
2. Faculty members interested in applying for a grant must inform the Office of CFR of their intention to apply. Faculty will then draft the proposal in alignment with the funding agency's requirements.
3. To ensure sufficient time for review and revisions, the final proposal must be submitted to the Office of CFR at least 20 days prior to the funding agency's deadline.
4. Submitted proposals will be reviewed by a panel of experts to ensure quality, feasibility, financial viability, and alignment with institutional and funding agency guidelines. The Panel members will include:
 - Dean of the School
 - Program Director-Doctoral Program of the School
 - Subject Expert
5. Following the incorporation of feedback from the expert panel, the proposal will be presented to the Research Ethics Committee for clearance, if applicable. This step ensures the proposal meets ethical standards. If the expert panel does not identify any ethical concerns, approval from the Ethics Committee is not required. The panel must explicitly confirm that no ethical concerns are raised.

6. Following the feedback received from the Review Committee and the Research Ethics Committee, the Office of CFR will conduct a final review of the proposal. If the proposal raises no ethical concerns and is in alignment with the guidelines of both the institution and the funding agency, the Office of CFR will submit it to the Office of the Vice-Chancellor for further consideration.
7. Once the proposal receives clearance from the Ethics Committee (where applicable), it will be submitted to the Office of the Vice-Chancellor for final approval from the Office of Pro-Chancellor/Chancellor and the issuance of an endorsement letter. Following this, the concerned faculty members will proceed to submit the proposal to the respective funding agencies.
8. A copy of the submitted proposal must be provided by the faculty concerned to the Office of CFR for institutional records. The Office of CFR will then submit a complete copy of the proposal to the Office of RAISE and the Vice Chancellor's Office for documentation and audit requirements.

4.0 Incentive for Research Publications

The Rewarding Research and Publications Policy aims to enhance the University's global research profile and recognize faculty members who publish in international journals. Research output is a key component of each faculty member's annual performance evaluation and directly influences annual compensation reviews.

Faculty are expected to achieve one of the following publications benchmarks each year:

- A minimum of four publications in Scopus/ABDC-indexed journals, including at least two in Q1 or Q2 Scopus journals,

OR

- A minimum of two publications, with at least one in a Q1 Scopus-indexed journal.

4.1 Rewarding Research and Publications Policy

Publication of research papers in top quality journals is key criteria for recognizing and rewarding academic research. To identify top quality journals, the categorization of journals will be done with the objective of setting standards for the quality of research papers published by the faculty members. The classification will be made into four quartiles: Q1, Q2, Q3, Q4. This is done because the broad objective of this exercise is to encourage research by faculty but at the same time there is also a need to see that genuinely high-quality research papers be recognized appropriately. Thus, the classification envisages a pyramid structure where very few contributions might be coming to 'Q1' and the highest contributions might be coming to perhaps 'Q2' and 'Q3' journals. However, faculty members should try to raise their own bar to publish in 'Q1' consequently the research rewards structure will also take this perception into account for defining the rewards.

Conditions for Award of Research Incentive:

- The article must have been published during the tenure of the faculty member at the University and his/her affiliation with the University should be clearly mentioned.
- A Faculty will be eligible for cash incentives only beyond his/her first 2 research papers subject to the condition that he/she has been able to meet the requirement of 4 papers in a calendar year. Papers with higher 'h' index will be considered for award of cash incentives.
- The faculty must be the corresponding author or listed among the first 3 authors for the incentive.

The amount of cash award will be as follows:

Research Publications	1 st Author	2 nd Author	3 rd Author
Q1	Rs.1.50 lakh	Rs.75,000/-	Rs.50,000/-
Q2	Rs.1.00 lakh	Rs.50,000/-	Rs.30,000/-
Q3	Rs.50,000/-	Rs.30,000/-	Rs.20,000/-
Listed in Scopus/ WOS	Rs.20,000/-	Rs.10,000/-	Rs.5,000/-

- Note:
- Incentive will be computed based on the number of authors.
 - Incentive will be applicable only to the above 2 publications in an academic year.
 - Maximum of 1 Lakh 50 thousand incentive is applicable per researcher.

4. Also refer to Chapter 1.7 (Para 14) for Credit points in Performance Appraisal for faculty.

4.2 To Promote Filing Patents / Designs/ Copyrights

Faculty members are required to file patents under the University's affiliation and through the IPR Cell. Those intending to file a patent must submit an Invention Disclosure Form to the IPR Cell, which will review the submission and assist in drafting claims for filing patents or copyrights.

The University will bear 100% of the patent filing fees.

Additionally, a grant of Rs. 15,000 will be awarded for each patent granted by the Indian Patent Office, the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO), or other recognized international patent authorities.

4.3 Extramural Funding

5 IP Policy

Applied research and development often results in inventions and/or the design new devices that contribute to the quality of life and economic improvement. Use or exploitation of such technological progress should be limited to the creator and the University through appropriate protection. In order to qualify for patent protection, the invention should be novel and innovative and should have immense practical applications.

The general policies include:

1. The University will encourage all inventions that can lead to patents and help its related protection by arranging for filing the patent application.

2. Establish effective mechanism and procedures in obtaining appropriate protection.
3. The Central research committee will evaluate the invention's practical and commercial values and keep a register of all patents and projects.
4. University may ensure a fair distribution of financial benefits that may arise from the patent obtained under the appropriate invention.
5. The financial benefits that may arise from the commercialization of the invention in which the university has an interest will be distributed as follows (after all costs incurred by the university have been deducted):

• Inventor	-	60%
• University	-	40%

6 Consulting and Other Outside Professional Activities

6.1 Principles and General Standards

This policy is applicable to all members of the faculty of the university. The purpose of the policy on consulting and related activities is to state with both clarity and generality the limits on such activities and the reasons for those limits. Consulting and other outside professional activities can provide an important means of continuing education for the faculty and can provide them with a currency and experience in aspects of their professional fields outside the context of the University itself. These activities can also provide a mechanism for transfer of knowledge from the University to the public good. Though such attributes of consulting may make faculty better scholars and teachers, the employer-employee nature of the consulting process has in it the potential for diversion of faculty from their primary activities and responsibilities. Therefore, the basic principle of this policy statement is that there needs to be a limitation upon the time that a faculty member may spend in consulting. The limits set forth below are intended to strike a fair balance between consulting and regular faculty duties within the University and serve to safeguard the interests of both parties.

Though comprehensive, the policy cannot deal unambiguously with every instance of consulting or other outside professional activities. In cases of doubt, the primary guide should have the intention to promote the interests of the University as a place of education, learning, and research. In all cases it is mandatory for the faculty to receive permission from Vice chancellor through the Office of CFR.

6.2 Consulting

In general, consulting is defined as a professional activity related to the person's field or discipline, where a fee-for-service or equivalent relationship with a third party exists.

There are many types of consulting relationships and fee arrangements, and the precise form entered may vary. The principle is that, in consulting, a person agrees to use his or her professional capabilities to further the agenda of a third party, in return for an immediate or prospective gain. Activities that constitute or imply managerial or supervisory responsibility are not permitted as they would create conflict of interests and are not allowable as consulting relations.

Several types of faculty activity, other than regular University duty, are not “consulting.” These are:

A. Publications/ Editors/Reviewers

Scholarly communications in the form of books, movies, television productions, art works, etc., though frequently earning financial profit for a faculty member and for another party (e.g., publisher), are not viewed as consultation. However, faculty may not publish articles or other forms of scholarly communication under their own names in the course of their outside professional activities that are written in whole or material part by employees of the outside entity (i.e., “ghost written”). If a faculty member is listed as an author on any publication resulting from performance of consulting services, a disclosure should be included stating that the work was done as a paid consultant and was not part of the individual's University duties and responsibilities.

B. Professional Service (Other Outside Professional Activities)

Under this silo falls service to national commissions, governmental agencies and boards, granting agency peer review panels, philanthropic organizations or charities, professional societies, visiting committees or advisory groups to other universities, and non-governmental bodies. The fundamental distinction between these activities and consulting is that they are public or University service. Although an honorarium or equivalent sometimes is forthcoming, these professional service activities are not undertaken for personal financial gain. Therefore, such service does not fall within the consulting category. In addition, even activities such as pro bono work, government service in the public interest, and any outside employment unrelated to the faculty member's University responsibilities are not included as “consulting” in the policy on outside consulting. They do not take precedence over a faculty member's primary commitment to the University.

C: Consultancy Training

In-house training programs accepted by individual faculty members on their own account involving more than four hours of external lectures on a single day, or lectures spanning more than a day.

Funded research projects, for which no remuneration will be received, will not come under the purview of either consultancy or related professional activities. Also, assignments such as being examiners/reviewers, for academic research and publications will not come under the purview of either consultancy or related professional activities.

6.3 Research/Human Resource Development Policy

6.4 Rules and Operating Procedures

The following rules shall govern all consultancy and related professional activities

Leave granted for undertaking consultancy assignments shall be considered separate from duty leave and shall be subject to a prescribed cap within the academic year.
3. The project number must be referenced in all official correspondence among the stakeholders.

8. Retainership-type-assignments will also be permitted on the condition that the duration of such engagements does not exceed two days per month or, 24 days in a year.

9. For faculty members who have been on the University's payroll for less than a year, this exemption will be on pro-rata basis.
